

Vacancy-Mechanical Technician

The National Tramway Museum, located at Crich, Derbyshire, has the UK's leading collection of historical tramcars and associated equipment. We are recognised as a Designated Outstanding Collection by Arts Council England, fully reflecting the significance, quality and diversity of our collection.

Our demonstration fleet, comprising of over twenty electric tramcars, gives visitors an experience and demonstration of travel in a bygone age.

To strengthen our small, highly skilled workshop team, we are seeking an experienced mechanical technician to be part of long-term restoration projects.

Applicants should ideally be time-served in fitting or a related discipline. Familiarity with bench working and machining would be an advantage, as would prior experience in a heritage vehicle environment.

The work is varied, challenging and enjoyable. The Museum provides a pleasant working environment, working in a team as well as being able to take individual responsibility. Normal working hours are 37.5 per week. The Museum operates seven days per week from March to November, some evening and weekend working will be required. Salary is £24,000 per annum.

Applicants for this interesting post should send their CV, with covering letter, to:

N D White, Engineering Manager at:

neil.white@tramway.co.uk